

The cultural theme of Greek life is “man is the measure of all things.”

1. Human beings think and reason and can make sense of human nature and physical nature.
2. Individuals are important and have worth and dignity.
3. Life and society should be organized bringing out the best in all people.
4. To be the best, a person should strive to be well-rounded.
 - A. A person should explore all subjects and develop all talents (mind and body) rather than specialize in just one thing.
 - B. A well rounded person also has these characteristics:
 - 1) balance
 - a healthy perspective on life; ability understand and judge things in true relationship to each other;
 - 2) self control
 - ability to restrain, discipline, master one's emotions, desires, actions;
 - 3) curiosity
 - an eagerness to know and learn new things; openness to the world around oneself.
